

During nuclear fusion, two nuclei join to form a larger nucleus, producing large amounts of energy.