

In circular motion, an object at constant speed is continually changing direction.