

The rate of energy transfer by heating depends on the type of material an object is made from.