

Transformers are used to change the voltage of electrical energy when it leaves the power station to make transfer